

Podiatry Expert Witnesses

Our experienced associate podiatrist expert witness works with clients to assess conditions related to feet or lower limbs before providing objective opinion on a comprehensive treatment plan to restore or manage function and mobility, delivering a written report that covers cases ranging from nail surgery to musculoskeletal and sporting injuries.

Bush & Co has provided podiatry expert opinion reports for cases involving both personal injury and clinical negligence claims. Foot and lower limb health plays an important role in a person's independence.

At Bush & Co we recognise that a serious medical condition can both directly and indirectly affect foot and lower limb health which can have serious ramifications on their future functional mobility.

Podiatry expert witness reports can deliver an objective comprehensive opinion based on a thorough clinical assessment and evaluation of a person's injuries and subsequent foot/ mobility conditions.

Chelsea Tritschler | Podiatrist

Chelsea is a specialist podiatrist dealing with all manner of conditions affecting foot health and the wider impact this has on the rest of the body. She has excellent knowledge of a variety of musculoskeletal conditions affecting all ages and a special interest in diabetes, rheumatoid arthritis and cardiovascular disease, how these directly affect foot health and their impact on a person's lifestyle, medical conditions and mental health.

In addition to providing both clinic and community-based podiatry, Chelsea is able to carry out podiatric assessment and treatment within challenging environments. She currently works within a prison setting in HMS Devon and has worked within both Category B and C HMP sites, providing a broad range of podiatric treatment to inmates who present with foot and nail care issues, alongside other co-morbidities and health care conditions.

Our associates

As highly skilled allied health professionals, podiatrists have an input into the effective rehabilitation and management of conditions throughout the body. Knee, back, hip, leg length discrepancy, arthritic pain, indigestion, headache, and stress can all be traced back to problems with the foot and are common to podiatry specialists among clients of all ages.

Symptoms can lead to severe pain, disability and reduced mobility and consequently reduced health. Pains in the feet and legs are often ignored or neglected, with little thought given to their potential for long-term health limitations.

Our associate podiatry expert witness has experience in:

- The management of vascular disease
- Osteomyelitis
- Diabetic foot ulcers
- Complex ankle and lower limb fractures
- Altered mobility and biomechanics
- Arthritis
